But What Is the Occupy Movement?

The Occupy Movement is a people-powered direct action movement that began on September 17, 2011 in Liberty Square in Manhattan's Financial District. It is part of a growing international movement fighting against neoliberal economic practices, the crimes of Wall Street, government controlled by monied interests, and the resulting income inequality, unemployment, environmental destruction, and oppression of people at the front lines of the economic crisis.

On September 17th, men and women of all races, backgrounds, political and religious beliefs, began to organize in nonviolent protest. These men and women represent the 99% with the goal of creating a society that works for all, not just the 1%.

THE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH IN THE UNITED STATES

Things Aren't That Bad. Why Are You Protesting?

While it may seem pretentious to complain about how hard us poor Americans have it, we must take a few steps back and look at the bigger picture. If the trends of the last 40 years continue, the average American will continue to lose his or her personal freedoms, access to education, relative wages earned and ability to influence public policy. The Occupiers are saying that enough is enough. We've lost the middle class, control of our government and safety of our future, and we're going to fight to take it all back! We will no longer allow our elected officials to enact laws, regulations, and policies that are designed to benefit only the rich.

Nah, Nothing Will Change. Waste of Time. Go Get A Job.

The reality is that roughly half of all Occupiers are college educated and employed. We don't view fighting for the rights of all Americans as a joke or a waste of time.

We understand that every time the people in this country have united for social change, we have won. There was a time in this country when women could not vote, African-Americans had no Civil Rights, and 18 year olds could die for their country, but not participate in the democratic process.

Make no mistake; restoring our corrupt and crippled democracy to one that functions and serves us all is the great trial of our time. The 99% MUST unite and resolve to uphold our civic duty bestowed upon us by our forefathers and ensure "that this nation shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the Earth."
